Local Nimrods

Shoot Ducks

Capt. Johansen took a party of local nimrods to the flats Saturday for a few days duck shooting. The party consisting of Al Spader, H. Gartley, L. Olson, J. E. Worden and Leo McCormack, brought back 130 birds. Gartley was high gun with a total of 34 birds. They report the ponds on the flats frozen over and the ducks hard to get. Mr. Worden took his high-speed camera along and we expect to see some fine pictures of ducks and geese, for the weather was excellent for picture taking.

Making a Hero.

A nourishing supper, a good night's sleep and a fine morning have often made a hero of the same man who by indigestion, a restless night and a rainy morning would have proved a coward.—Chesterfield.

Coming Down.

The Madam (with a hand to her head)—Is my hair coming down, Kate? The Maid—Yes, ma'am, in a minute. I'm going right upstairs for it now.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Old Reliable Bird.

We do not pretend to know anything about ornithology, but we are willing to say this much for the stork: He delivers the goods.—Galveston News.

Sasse - Palmer

On the arrival of the Dolphin, Sunday, another Benedict was added to Wrangell's growing list. When Orville Palmer, of the firm of Palmer and Ensley, left on the Princess May several weeks ago, ostensible for a visit to his old home at Stamford, Nebraska, it was surmised by many that he would bring back a bride.

Miss Catherine Sasse and Orville Palmer were married at the home of the brides parents, Orleans, Nebraska, October 19th.

The Sentinel unites with the many friends of the couple in wishing them a long and happy married life.

Never make friends with the devil, a monkey or a boy. No man knows what they will do next.—Rudyard Kipling.

How Wheat Came to Earth.

A classic account of the distribution of wheat over the primeval world shows that Ceres, having taught her favorite, Triptolemus, the art of agriculture and the science of breadmaking, gave him her chariot, a celestial vehicle, and that in it he traveled night and day, distributing this valuable bread grain among all nations of the earth.

Fisher's Story

Alaskan Conditions

While an impression is forming that Walter L. Fisher may be something of a disappointment as Secretary of the Interior, he is a boon companion, and he tells an excellent story once in a while. He brought a "yarn" or two back from Alaska, where he went as a part of Special Commissioner for the Government to formulate ideas for legislation by Congress this Winter.

The Secretary says he encountered a disgusted Democratic reactionary up in Alaska. This one had sought for a long time to obtain some of the Alaska coal claims, and made complaints to the Secretary of the Interior over his failure.

"I shall get out of this dod-gasted country," declared the complainant. "Every Republican Administrator that comes in makes it harder for a man to get along, and I am sick of trying."

To this Secretary Fisher made an amiable suggestion. "Hang on a little while longer," said he cheerfully. "See if a Democratic Administration will not come along and help you out. Your party is talking pretty big just now."

"My party! Shoot!" snorted the Democratic reactionary. "The Democrats remind me of the salmon in these Alaskan rivers. They only run once in four years, and then they get canned."—National Tribune.

THE PRECIOUS DAYS.

The days are ever dying. They come and go like muffled and veiled figures sent from a distant friendly party, but they say nothing, and if we do not use the gifts they bring they carry them as silently away.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Kassan Cannery

Burned Down

News was brought in on the City of Seattle, Tuesday, of the burning of the Kassan cannery. Part of the pack of this year 30,000 cases were lost. This is the third fire the Kassan cannery has suffered in four years.

Early Combines and Corners. "Engrossing" was an offense punishable in England by fine and imprisonment, and the laws against it struck at those called "engrossers"—who planned to gain control over necessities, such as grain or foodstuffs in considerable quantities, either by purchase or otherwise, with the intention of raising prices. The statute book holds quite a series of enactments designed to prevent anything in the nature of what we know as a "corner" or "combine." "Regrating" was a criminal offense and so was "forestalling." The former consisted of buying and selling the same day in the same market or near it, and the latter implied the purchase of merchandise on the way to market or before the hour at which the market commenced with the intention of selling at a profit, while it was also "forestalling" to circulate rumors calculated to raise the prices of commodities. Though these laws have fallen into desuetude, they were in force in our grandfathers' time.—London Mail.

Women and Banking. The cashier of a bank which has many women depositors, in speaking of these customers, said that the stock stories about overdrawn accounts and ignorance as to bank methods had become pointless. Whatever may have been the case before, women give banks no more trouble now than men. "The woman who insists on drawing money when her balance has been exhausted because there are still blank checks in her book has disappeared and in her place we have a woman who wants interest on her money and who knows what 'call money' means," said the cashier. Referring to the "old kind," he added: "One day we did have a real case. A woman rushed in, said she had just figured up her account and found she was $500 short. Husband away—no other money—what could she do? She had brought jewels to leave as collateral security till he returned, and then we looked up the matter and found she had over $800 to her credit."—New York Tribune.

In our recent election of school officers the scholars unanimously elected Alice Kincaid as Drum Mistress and a vote of thanks was tendered Thor Hofstad, the outgoing officer for giving us such fine music by which to march.

Miss Pritchett has been sick this week, and the primary room has been having a series of teachers, the senior class taking turns in trying their skill in teaching. The children all hope for Miss Pritchett a speedy recovery as they miss her very much.

Last Friday morning the First grade called upon us. We were surprised at the way they could read. They gave us a song which was so applauded that they could not go before they sang another.

In the afternoon of the same day we were visited by the Third grade. The people in this class are such fine readers that we are really envious of them.
